WVSU Celebrates 125 Years of Service

University's rich history to be highlighted in 2016 events

On March 17, 2016, and throughout this year, West Virginia State University celebrates 125 years as an institution dedicated to service, access, and opportunity benefitting the State of West Virginia and its citizens. West Virginia State University is an institution with a rich, storied history that has served with enduring purpose and unwavering drive, resulting in a monumental impact. In this, our 125th year, the West Virginia State family has a unique opportunity to reflect upon the University's significant service to the communities in which we live and work—service that is bolstered by the incredible progress of the past 125 years. Join us at these free, public events, celebrating our history and anticipating our future.

WVSU Day of Giving to be held Founders Day - March 17, 2016

Help celebrate WVSU's 125 years of service by making a gift of any size on March 17! The WVSU Day of Giving is a day dedicated to giving back to West Virginia State University. Aligned with our 125th anniversary celebration on March 17, 2016, alumni and friends from around the country will come together in support of State. Funds from the Day of Giving will support WVSU students and programs throughout the year. Participants can give via our website at connect.wvstateu.edu/donate or by phone at (304) 766-3322.

A Place We Love So Dear

Dr. R. Charles Byers' collection of campus drawings available for pre-order, book signing set for March 17

On March 17, 2016, the first copies of "A Place We Love So Dear, A Collection of Campus Drawings" by Dr. R. Charles Byers, former Provost and Vice President for Academic Affairs with more than four decades of service to West Virginia State, will be available to those who pre-ordered copies. A limited number of additional copies will be available for purchase, and the author will be on hand to personally sign the books to commemorate this historic celebration. From Atkinson

Hall to the James C. Wilson University Union, the book features drawings of West Virginia State's campus buildings and landmarks, past and present. The book is still available for pre-order through the University at the low price of $35, including shipping. This price will increase after March 16.

It Springs from an Epic Love Story

In the early 1800's a rich plantation owner named Samuel Cabell fell in love with one of his slaves and chose her for his lifelong mate. Sadly, Cabell was murdered in 1865. However, before his untimely death, he took elaborate legal steps to guarantee that his true love, Mary Barnes Cabell, and their 13 children whom he accepted proudly, would inherit all his money and land and be guaranteed full legal rights and access to an education. The Cabell family sold their lots of land to the state of West Virginia to help create the campus of the West Virginia Colored Institute, now known as West Virginia State University. Samuel and Mary Barnes Cabell, who passed away in 1900, are buried beside one another in a cemetery on campus grounds.

Samuel and Mary Barnes are buried beside one another in a cemetery on campus grounds. The cemetery is located off Barron Drive near the Monroe Athletic Complex.

WVSU Cares Day

Annual event scheduled for April 23, 2016

WVSU Cares Day brings together Yellow Jacket students, faculty, staff and alumni for a one-of-a-kind service opportunity. Project sites around the community of Institute, and in Kanawha and Putnam counties, have already been identified. The projects may include outdoor clean-up, working with youth, literacy education, serving meals, office work, and a variety of other worthwhile endeavors.

WVSU Cares Day is West Virginia State University's largest community service event and is a great opportunity for WVSU students to learn about local organizations and agencies and to join with the entire State family in service to others.
